

Albizu University is suspending GRE requirements for graduate students during COVID-19

To reduce the financial burden and time required for college-level applicants, Albizu University's Miami campus has temporarily suspended the usual requirements for prospective students to pass a Graduate Records Exam (GRE).

"Right now, many people want to move into new careers quickly while juggling the demands of financial instability, working from home, and homeschooling children," said Dr. Tilokie DePoo, Chancellor of Albizu Miami. "Any graduate academic application is arduous, but simplifying some of these requirements is right for our hard-working students in a difficult year."

The GRE test is used by many graduate schools as a common measure for comparing the qualifications of academic candidates.
